72,000 Yds. of Printed Organdies

At 12<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>c. a Yard

WITH Christmas barely over our shoulders, here's a fresh and delightful whiff of Spring. We begin this morning a sale of Organdies that is going to make a sensation.

The cloths came from Alsace,—the printing was done by the best mill in America. A combination of two bests, yet cheaper than either alone.

If the cloths were printed where they were woven, the price would be regularly 35c., and the goods no better. We show sixty-one charming patterns, delicate, dainty and novel, and ask you

Twelve and a Half Cents a Yard.

No woman who has ever experienced the advantages of having her spring dresses made up early will consider this offer unseasonable. The time could scarcely be more seasonable and never will be more economical.

The very high character of the goods and the extraordinary price will make this offer memorable. We have given the fabric the place of honor this morning, and expect to do some fast selling.

Women's Imported Capes and Jackets

Reduced One-Third to One-Half

Attention! This is an important matter. More important to you than to us, for it's to your benefit and our loss.

These are the finest over-garments that the world produces for ready-to-wear demand. Hubert & Riquer, Sara Mayer & Morhange, Briamont Frères, of Paris; Pach and Gerson, of Berlin, and people of that class designed them. The workmanship is as close to perfection as highly-trained French and German needle-workers can carry it. You know how close that is. The styles are exclusively ours. Everything is lovely except that we have too many of the garments. So we telescope the prices into themselves until they are shut up from a full third to a full half.

Choose from about 400 garments, in Velour du Nord, Kersey, Matelasse, Ottoman Silk. Black, navy blue, royal blue, tan and steel.

CAPES.

At $27.50—Of black Kersey cloth; 27 in. deep; full sweep; front and bottom trimmed with black soutache braid in fancy design; high-rolling collar; front and back also embroidered; lined with black satin. Price was $36.

At $35—Of black Matelasse; 34 in. deep; full sweep; ruff around bottom; Persian lamb collar; lined with black satin. Price was $56.

At $40—Of black Ottoman silk; 36 in. deep; graduated ruffle down front and around bottom; black embroidery where ruff adjoins; also a trimming of Persian lamb; high-rolling collar of Persian lamb; lined with quilted black tailors' serge. Price was $60.

can never reach perfection unless the chairs are comfortable and the table solid. The kind of tables that "groan with viands", must be a very poor sort. A good, comfortable table is one that holds all that can be piled upon it with never a quiver nor a creak. You will find that kind on our fourth floor, and all around them are chairs and sideboards and china closets. The price tag on every one argues eloquently that you should

WOOD'S NEW YORK SCHOOL. BUSINESS AND COMMERCIAL EDUCATION. 17TH AV. AND 123rd ST.

1898 was a year when nearly 1,000 students attended the day and night schools, and over 1,000 applications came from business and professional men.

The school is now in full swing, and beyond the most sanguine expectations of the management.

All specimens students from other schools were brightened up and given lucrative positions. The new year is now open, and the school is well prepared to furnish opportunity for the most enterprising and thrifty people. The instructors are cultured, helpful men; the environments are superb; the expenses are moderate. Will you visit us?
